

LATE 'PLOTTER' SAYS HE HOPES TO JOIN ALLIES

Guy B. Randell Also Denies He Pleaded Guilty to U. S.
Commissioner

In spite of the fact that he was arrested and charged with violating the neutrality of the United States, only to later be exonerated by the federal grand jury, Guy B. Randell says that he is just as loyal as ever to the colors of his country and declares that he will go to either Canada or Australia to join the British forces as soon as he can get a job and earn passage money.

But Randell denied today that he entered a plea of guilty when he was heard before U. S. Commissioner George S. Curry.

"The commissioner asked me whether I was guilty or not guilty," he says. "I told him that I had promised to get those two soldiers out of the army that they might enlist with the Allies—that was my plea."

This promise, Randell declares, was made to an ex-soldier named Jefferson, who was the person who first approached him with the project of buying two corporals out of the 4th Cavalry for enlistment with the British. Jefferson was arrested at the same time as Randell, but was speedily released on the ground that he had "assisted in working up the case" against Randell.

"W. P. Fennell, liquor license inspector, told me last Saturday that Jefferson was working for D. L. Conkling, and intimating that he also was working for the U. S. district attorney's office," Randell says. "Jefferson is now in the state of Washington. I heard that he got out because he was afraid a certain bunch of soldiers was going to 'beat him up.'"

Randell also declares that Fennell told him that he (Fennell) was one of the persons who helped Jefferson to purchase his discharge from the army.

"Then Jefferson came to me, said he took me for a Britisher, and said that there were a couple of boys in the army who would like to go to the front," Randell says. "I promised Jefferson that I would do what I could for them."

He adds that shortly after his release from Oahu prison he went to the British consul to obtain financial assistance to get to the front, but that the consul referred him to the British Club. At the British Club Randell says he was told that that organization had no funds available.

Randell says he knew all the time that young "Jack" Gordon intended to enlist in the British army. "I knew it the first day he got in Honolulu," he declares. "I guess that by this time he has already enlisted."

Gordon probably put up his own passage money to a Honolulu to Australia, according to Randell.

The Union Pacific Railroad company submitted February earnings showing a gross increase of $2,441,900 with a net gain of $1,385,000.

MANSLAUGHTER IS CHARGE; RESULT OF WRIGHT DEATH

Fred Wright, motorcycle officer, who died following his injury by car driven by Mail Collector John E. F. A.

Manslaughter in the first degree is the charge now against Mail Collector John E. F. A. Wright, who ran over Motorcycle Officer Fred Wright Wednesday night. The latter died yesterday afternoon and Silva was arraigned this morning in police court. His hearing is set for May 8.

Silva was released this afternoon on bond of $2500 signed by L. L. McCann, less in the circuit court of Judge Ashford.

The inquest will be held tomorrow morning.

The end came to Fred Wright in the Queen's hospital at 1:15 yesterday afternoon. His brother, George Wright, and brother-in-law, William Espindola, were with him.

The funeral is being held at 3 this afternoon at Williams' undertaking parlors, Rev. Canon Ault of St. Andrew's Cathedral officiating, under the auspices of Honolulu Aerie. Mounted patrolmen are to attend; patrolmen are the pallbearers.

Wright was born in England, came here when seven years old, served as a policeman for nearly 20 years and would have been 40 in June. His reputation as an officer was very good. He is survived by two brothers, John and George Wright; a half-brother, Andrew; a sister, Mrs. J. H. Pascoe; his wife, and his step-mother, Mrs. Henry Wright, all of Honolulu.

MAY TEAR OUT PARKING ALONG KALAKAUA AVE.

There was a meeting of the City Planning Commission this morning, but no action on the Punalu outlet was taken. A copy of the letter sent to the Country Club directors April 21, offering to arbitrate the differences between it and the Punalu Improvement Club, was read and there was a side desultory comment on the fact that the matter was hanging fire and there ought to be some action taken pretty soon.

Arthur F. Wall and Mrs. F. J. Lowrey were appointed a committee to ascertain whether it is advisable to plant trees along the extension of Beretania street to Kaimuki, and if so what varieties should be used.

George M. Collins, city engineer, stirred the members of the commission with a proposal to do away with the parking in Kalakaua avenue on the portion where there are street car tracks. He said it might be necessary to tear out the parking and put tracks up on a curbing. He declared that he already had this planned and proposed to bring it before the supervisors at tomorrow night's meeting.

His Sweetheart's Watery Grave Was Naught But Dream

"Save my sweetheart, she drowned!"

This was the startling cry made to the police yesterday afternoon near Pier 10 at the foot of Fort street.

In an instant there was a great hubbub. An ambulance dashed to the scene; more police came, a crowd gathered.

Jose Mattias, an old Porto Rican, waved his arms and rolled his eyes. Through a Spanish interpreter he told that his sweetheart had tumbled or jumped off the pier, had gone down, leaving nothing but bubbles, and didn't come up.

Who the "sweetheart" was and why she did it, the police couldn't learn.

The old man was taken to the emergency hospital at the city jail, where he told his whole story in Spanish to Dr. R. G. Ayer, who understands that language. Policemen were left at the pier to watch for "sweetheart" to appear. She didn't.

"I live in the Palama district," Jose told Dr. Ayer, "and borrowed a boat yesterday to pick up driftwood. I had been drinking a little and got off at Pier 10 to get a cup of coffee. When I returned the boat was gone. I leaned over to look for it, at the same time a woman leaned over. The next instant she was in the water. I hurried to the police."

This morning one of the detectives asked Jose why he pushed the woman off the pier.

He exclaimed: "Me push her! No! She is my sweetheart!"

When Detective Captain McDuffie examined the sweetheartless one this morning the story was different. Through an interpreter, Jose said:

"Yesterday is all a dream to me. I don't remember just what happened. Maybe I dreamed it all."

As the captain ordered Jose dismissed, he said:

"Be more careful of your sweetheart hereafter."

NOT GUILTY OF HEEDLESSNESS, AUTOIST PLEADS

Donald Kent of the Hawaiian Packing Company, Wahiawa, through his attorney, E. W. Sutton, this morning pleaded not guilty in police court to a charge of heedless driving. He was released upon the word of his attorney to appear for trial Wednesday morning.

Last night Mr. Kent struck a woman, Noyo Makita, with his car, according to Mr. Sutton, but very slightly and did not seriously hurt her. It happened on King street, near the Palama fire station. According to Mr. Sutton, Mr. Kent took the woman to her home in his car, thence back to the point of accident again, where the woman wished to catch a car. It was here that the police took Mr. Kent. He was released on $250 bail.
